Lead Professional Learning Specialist, PL Coordinator

BIOGRAPHY

"My 'WHY' comes from the belief that school counselors are in the most influential position to support youth in their social/emotional development, shape student attitudes about education and opportunities beyond school, as well as to be a resource for families as they encounter new challenges and have many questions about how best to guide and support their children."

I have enjoyed all of the positions I've held in education over the past 32 years! My first full-time teaching position was a middle school Special Education teacher. The second position was a high school General Education teacher in Social Sciences and Physical Education. My last position on a school campus was in school counseling at the high school level. Throughout my career on school sites, I coached varsity sports. I've always been a high-profile educator and one who contributes to the school's culture and climate, whether that be through coaching, class advising, club sponsoring, tutoring, or by playing games at school rallies.

In 2016, I accepted the position of Counseling Coordinator for Shasta County and was relieved of my caseload in order to lead a county-wide school counseling initiative. As the Counseling Coordinator, I've worked with administrators and school counselors from 12 school districts. My position as the Shasta County and Reach Higher Shasta Counseling Coordinator has afforded me tremendous opportunities, but none as stupendous as with Hatching Results. My role within Hatching Results allows me to share my passion for school counseling, demonstrate leadership, teach knowledge and skills required for 21st-century school counselors, and coach school counselors through the process of systemic change in order to implement a comprehensive and data-driven school counseling program.
